FRAMERY ONE WORK

A private office for whoever needs it most

A smart workstation pod designed for long sessions of focused work.

In a hybrid office, a private office stands empty whenever its owner works elsewhere. Framery One Work is designed to be shared, and it creates and releases walk-in reservations automatically as people enter and leave.

"A private office used to belong to one person. Framery One Work belongs to whoever has the hardest work that day."

Joonas Vartola
CDO of Framery

Four workstation pods fit in the floor space of one standard private office.

One Work occupies 2.5 m², so four fit in the 10 m² of a standard private office. One Work is 233 cm high, with an interior ceiling height of 209.7 cm, enough to stand up, stretch or take a call on your feet.

The desk sits flush to the wall, leaving the floor clear. A wide 96.6 cm doorway and a step-free 1.25 cm threshold give full wheelchair access. Large glass walls keep the space open to the office around it.

One fits four.

"A small room feels small when you run into its limits: a table leg you bump into, a cable across the floor, a wall close to your chair. A wall is a limit for the eye too. Glass isn't, so the pod borrows the space around it. The footprint stays compact, but you never feel its edges."

The evolving needs of a modern workforce

CASE STORY
POSTEN BRING OSLO, NORWAY

Posten Bring, a Nordic leader in postal and logistics solutions, employs over 12,600 people across 600 branches.

Posten Bring puts special effort into creating a supportive workplace by providing extra workplace privacy with Framery smart pods – and solidifying its dedication to supporting the needs of work.

As a dynamic organization with a large workforce, Posten Bring faced a recurring workplace challenge – the need for more private spaces to accommodate ad hoc telephone and virtual meetings. Gunnvor Solholm Høigaard, Facility Manager at Posten Bring, sought a flexible and innovative solution to their workplace challenges.

In order to optimize space in their busy office environment, Høigaard and her team turned to Framery after considering available options on the market. The superior design and advanced usability of Framery smart pods align with Posten Bring's focus on innovation and continuous improvement – bringing much-needed privacy to their bustling team.

Since 2022, Posten Bring has integrated an impressive fleet of one-person office pods from Framery – recently adding 20 Framery One Compact pods to their workplace. Their compact design allows them to fit into tight spaces, making them a practical choice for providing privacy in all areas throughout the office.

"Framery pods provide flexibility to find a quiet and private space whenever needed."

Posten Bring

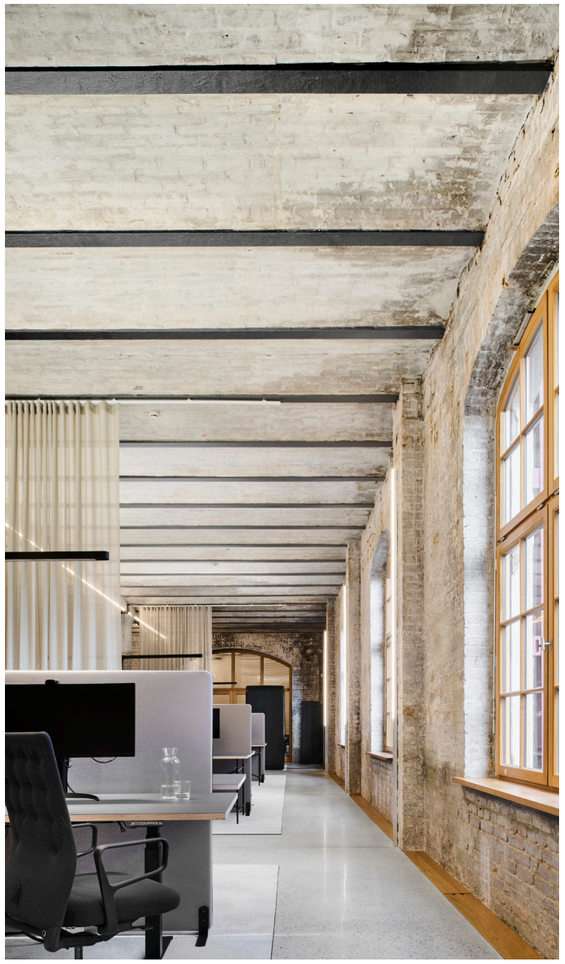

Posten Bring demonstrates the importance of adapting their strategy to support the changing needs of work. Posten Bring has embraced modern workplace solutions that prioritize flexibility, efficiency, and employee well-being. Integrating Framery smart pods into their workplace has helped Posten Bring to remain competitive and support their workforce – ensuring that the company remains a leader in postal and logistics solutions while creating a workplace designed for the future.

Blending industrial heritage with modern workplace design

AVENTOS Group's Berlin office artfully blends industrial heritage with modern design featuring a fleet of all sized Framery smart pods. Exposed brick walls and arched ceilings contrast with sleek, contemporary furnishings and polished floors. The whole space is bright and airy. Framery smart pods are seamlessly integrated, offering private workspaces within the open-plan layout.

To accommodate different work styles, the office is equipped with a fleet of Framery pods. Framery One pods provide a quiet space for solo work, while larger Framery Four and Six meeting pods are available for team collaboration. Their stylish, curved design and sophisticated color palette complement the office's aesthetic, serving as both a functional necessity and a striking design element.

Overall, the office design creates an inspiring atmosphere that feels both historic and forward-thinking.

CASE STORY
ONETRUST MADRID, SPAIN

Digital security company OneTrust's new office in Madrid stands out for its materiality and functionality. The open layout of the huge office space revolves around a central hub for common areas. This hub includes meeting rooms, Framery phone booths, smaller offices, and a large central Agora for events and collaboration.

Neutral, natural, yet so distinctive

The office design features neutral tones, natural materials, and distinctive ceramic accents. Furniture uses neutral, warm tones to support focus and relaxation, like Framery One Compact smart office phone booths in the stylish sand and oak color combination.
